"This year the project has successfully established a trusted and responsive support offer for families of children with SEND who have experience of the care system. Strong engagement from families has demonstrated the need for the service and the value of delivering support in a safe and non-judgemental environment. Advocacy has been a key success, enabling families to better navigate education, health and social care systems, resulting in improved access to support and increased confidence for parents and carers. Peer support has also been highly effective, reducing isolation and creating a sense of belonging for families who often feel alone in their experiences."
