"A key success was the clear improvement in mental wellbeing and resilience. Across domains such as anxiety, depression, self-esteem, and trauma-related symptoms, 84 per cent or more of young people showed stabilisation or progress. Encouraging outcomes were seen in suicidal ideation (84 per cent), self-harm (83 per cent), and bullying experiences (88 per cent). Behavioural improvements were also notable, with 80 per cent improving in verbal/physical aggression and 70 per cent in delinquent behaviour. Despite ongoing trauma, the therapeutic space provided a vital outlet for emotional regulation and growth."
